The idea

> Before Milan starts talking, there is a minute of light that belongs to nobody. NOVARA is the coffee you drink in it.

TONE

warm · unhurried · Milanese morning · tactile

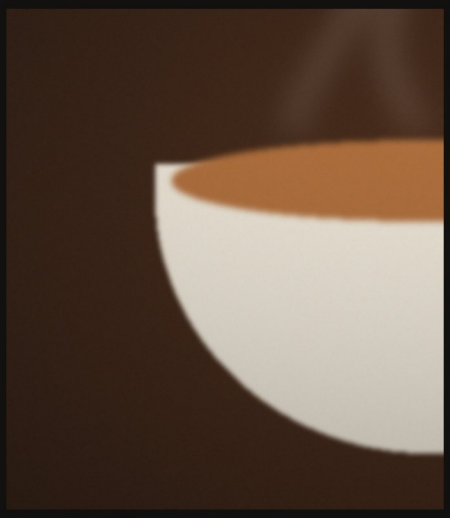

APPROACH

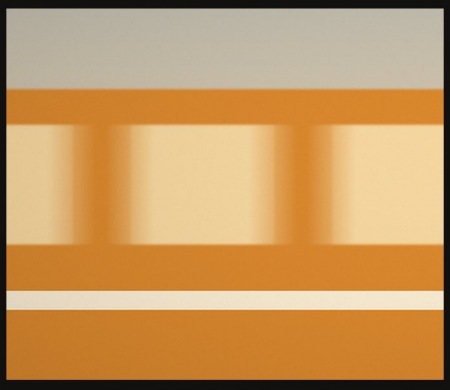

The film opens on its first image: Milan rooftops at dawn. From there it moves through four moments. A kitchen window throws a long shaft of light. Steam curls up from a fresh espresso. Overhead, the cup on its saucer. And one more, each given room to breathe. The register is warm, unhurried, Milanese morning and tactile, with a camera that changes gear with the story, from slow push-ins to gliding lateral moves. The last image: The NOVARA cup alone on a dark plinth, so that NOVARA is the last thing the audience holds on to. Six shots, fifteen seconds, one idea.

RULES

01 The NOVARA wordmark sits on the end card only, centred, never over the coffee.

02 Clear space equals the height of the letter N on every side.

03 Supers in sentence case, display serif, white or cream, never more than two lines.

04 Terracotta is the accent: reserved for the call to action and the cup band.

05 No people's faces: hands and objects carry the story.
