01 The idea

Before Milan starts talking, there is a minute of light that belongs to nobody. NOVARA is the coffee you drink in it.

TONE

warm · unhurried · Milanese morning · tactile

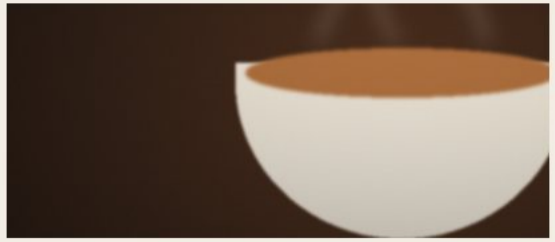

APPROACH

The film opens on its first image: Milan rooftops at dawn. From there it moves through four moments. A kitchen window throws a long shaft of light. Steam curls up from a fresh espresso. Overhead, the cup on its saucer. And one more, each given room to breathe. The register is warm, unhurried, Milanese morning and tactile, with a camera that changes gear with the story, from slow push-ins to gliding lateral moves. The last image: The NOVARA cup alone on a dark plinth, so that NOVARA is the last thing the audience holds on to. Six shots, fifteen...
